Re: BRADLEY FELLOWSHIPS for the 2009–10 academic year

We anticipate that the Bradley Foundation will once again generously offer to fund fellowships for the 2009–10 academic year. Bradley Student Fellowships are designed to support Bradley's own academic mission. That mission rests on the presupposition that responsible self-government depends not only on intelligent laws, but also the creation of a civic environment that encourages enlightened citizens to participate in a discussion of controversial issues. Consistent with these ideals, the Foundation hopes that student fellows will work and study in areas that explore the role of limited government in a legal regime that fosters a dynamic marketplace for economic, intellectual, and cultural activity, both in the United States and abroad.

There are no specific papers or course requirements for the receipt of this award. At the end of the academic year, the committee wishes to receive a short statement which summarizes the way in which a recipient's studies and activities at the Law School during the 2009–10 academic year have worked to advance the academic objectives of the Bradley Fellowship program.

Interested students should submit a resume and a one-page statement indicating their interest in the mission of the Bradley Foundation. Submissions are due to Marjorie Holme, L&E Program Administrator, by June 26, 2009. Please see Professor Epstein with any substantive questions about the program and Ms Holme about any administrative matters.

Applicants may submit materials to Marjorie Holme at mholme@uchicago.edu or in person in room 603.
